Turn the Tables with Priya Kumar, an Interview.

From the Editor's Desk

It is hard to bid goodbye to something that has given you an identity and helped you work towards your passion. Starting out three years ago, I would like to reflect how grateful I am to SIES Skyline for giving me a life altering experience. It is evident that we have seen all the highs in the past few years in terms of our Celebrity PR, Content creation & over all working of the publishing system & have been successful in setting new standards and scaling new heights. I am extremely thankful to Chairperson Dr. Uma Shankar & our VCP's Mrs. Uma Kokku and Dr. Lakshmi Muthukumar alongside the two pillars of SIES Skyline Akshay Agrawal & Ojas Barve for being supportive throughout. This entire journey wouldn't have been possible without our supportive readers and an extremely efficient team.

Volume 8: Issue 1 covers various extracurricular activities around the college along with our Dark Truth focusing on the environment. Team Skyline got the opportunity to interview business coach and author Ms Priya Kumar and shares it with the readers. The issue focuses on environmental problems. Last but not the least, wishing all the very best to the new Editorial Board and Volunteer Team 2019-20. Happy Reading!

AKSHAY GUPTA
Editor-In-Chief
(2018 - 2019)

DR. UMA SHANKAR
Chairperson, Principal

I feel immense pride and joy to announce SIES Skyline Volume 8: Issue No. 1. The newsletter has covered a wide range of topics in this issue including The Dark Truth which focuses on instilling environmental consciousness. The work done by Team Skyline is commendable and I wish them well for the year ahead.

UMADEVI KOKKU
Vice Chairperson

'The mind is not a vessel to be filled but a fire to be ignited.' This quote is apt for the Team Skyline as in every issue they bring together content worth contemplating. Kudos to the team for yet another feat!

DR. LAKSHMI MUTHUKUMAR
Vice Chairperson

As yet another editorial team begins working on Skyline, I look forward to new ideas and designs. My compliments to the outgoing editorial team and I hope all of you enjoy reading this issue!

Josh 4.0: Waves of Change

Rotaract Club of SIES College, Sion West conducted its annual flagship project Josh 4.0. The theme for this year's Josh was 'This Time for the Ocean'. The theme was chosen keeping in mind the gradual deterioration of the environment. It aimed at creating awareness about environmental protection by emphasising more on the harmful effects of plastic waste on water bodies and aquatic life.

On August 25, 2019 team Josh lead by Rtr. Darshil Punamiya and Rtr. Karan Jain in association with NGOs like Hope and FFF, and the NSS unit of the college, carried out a clean-up drive at the Juhu beach. With the participation of about 100 volunteers, 'Waves of Change', was a successful drive as the team was able to collect about 4-5 tonnes of garbage from the seashore making the event a huge success.

Team Josh 4.0 also organized flash mobs at various Ganpati pandals across the city to spread awareness about the effects of water pollution. The team performed at 14 different Pandals during Ganesh Chaturthi from September 3rd to 9th, 2019 covering Pandals like Tejukaya Sarvajanic Ganesh Utsav Trust, Chinchpokli Chintamani, Kalachowkicha Chintamani, Ganesh Galli 'Mumbaicha Raja', Kajupadyacha Kaivari - Ganesh Mitra Mandal, SIES College, Khetwadi 12th Lane, Sahyadri Krida Mandal, Parel Cha Raja (Nare Park) and Fort Cha Raja. Team Josh 4.0 got the opportunity to meet popular Marathi celebrities Abhijit Kelkar and Shiv Thakare during their flash mob at GSB Seva Mandal, Matunga.

More projects like Josh 4.0 should be conducted, that aim at creating social awareness through innovative means that helps create awareness about real-time environmental issues.

- Jincy Jose, SYBA.

COLLEGE UPDATES

Value Lab: Jagrut Mumbaikar

The Value Lab conducted a seminar: "Jagrut Mumbaikar", an initiative designed by the Security Branch of Mumbai Police in the wake of 26/11 to fight terrorism and highlight the precautions that the public can take if they come across dangerous scenarios or suspicious activities. The seminar explained the importance of being alert when one steps out of their house and how small precautions along with presence of mind can help ensure the safety of Mumbai and its people.

Department of English

On August 13 2019. The department of English organized a book reading, of the book, "Twice it Happened" by Dr. Gita Vishwanath. She has a Ph.D. in English literature and film studies from the Maharaja Sayajirao University of Baroda and is an alumna of the college, BA with English in 1977. She has also received a fellowship from the Social Science Research Council, New York. Dr. Gita Vishwanath also spoke on writing fiction, at the event. The interaction was very insightful and motivational for the students.

Cultural Association: Talent Mania

The Cultural Association organized "Talent Mania" for the first-year students on August 26, 2019. The event consisted of a talent round followed by personality-testing questions asked by the judges: Ms. Bijoy Vora, Mr. Akshay Pandey, and Cultural Secretary Rajat Mogaveera. Aditi from FYBMS and Rohak from FYJC – Arts won the title of Miss and Mr. Freshers respectively. The winners were awarded a trophy and sashes along with other exciting prizes.

Politics Association

The Politics Association in collaboration with Praja Foundation conducted an event on R.T.I Act on July 26, 2019. Ex-Information Commissioner Mr. Shailesh Gandhi was the guest speaker that day. He spoke about the concept of democracy and what it entails. He also came up with an interesting slogan "Hamara paisa, Hamara hisab". The discussion was concluded by Mr. Shailesh urging the students to be responsible citizens of the country.

Tamil Association

August 27, 2019 marked the inauguration of the Tamil Association of SIES ASC for the academic year 2019-20. For the past 25 years, the association has played an important role in spreading information about the Tamil culture. The inauguration started with Principal Dr. Uma Shankar and the dignitaries lighting the lamp followed by a prayer, a Bharatanatyam performance, and singing by the students. Speeches were delivered in Tamil by the honorable Chief Guest Sundari Venkat, Secretary Sion Tamil Sangham and the Association's Chairperson Ms. Lakshmi Shekhar.

Commerce Association

The Inaugural function of Commerce Association 2019-20 was held on July 16, 2019 in the mini auditorium. The chief guest of the occasion was CA Anand Krishnamoorthy, an alumnus of the college (Batch 1992-93), currently Risk Management and Alliance Director at Capita India. He delivered a guest lecture on 'Leveraging Commerce Education into the Corporate World'. The Head of the Department of Commerce introduced the newly-elected office-bearers of the association and the session ended with a video showcasing the past events conducted and the vision for the new year.

Cultural Association: Clay modelling workshop

The Cultural Association organized a Ganesha modeling workshop at the college. The event was inaugurated by Dr. Uma Shankar and was conducted by Ms. Sarita Ganesh who runs the NGO, Khula Aasman. The workshop highlighted the idea of eco-friendly idols and environmental consciousness. About 30 students and staff participated in the workshop. They were excited to take their models home and display them. The entire process was a therapeutic experience for all the participants.

BMS Department: Seminar on Risk & Entrepreneurship

The BMS Department held a seminar on Risk and Entrepreneurship which was graced by the lively and spirited presence of Prof. Samish Dalal, SP Jain Institute of Global Management on August 23, 2019. Over fifty students attended the seminar and gained new perspectives and insights about the risk and return relationship. To grab every opportunity that comes your way and make the most of it was the take-away lesson from the seminar. The seminar proved to be useful and informative to those in attendance.

DARK TRUTH

The Burning Planet

They say Mankind was God's best creation. However, the current state of the world makes me wonder if God will ever support that claim. The basic sentiments of love and humanity among other such emotions have been maliciously traded for a few bits of 'green paper', thereby conquering our do-good emotions and creating the ultimate consumer. It is our greed and the ever-present hunger for convenience that has turned this planet back into the burning ball of gases that it was, only this time, it is because of the emissions we created, the development we supported and the fires that we could not control. Karma is catching up fast. Human ignorance made us believe that it will be a long time before the consequences of our actions would catch up, at least another 100 years if not more. It is this nonchalance that will cost us everything...the very planet we reside in.

It is exactly this attitude that leads us to continue abusing our environment and now we are at the end of the line! We burnt half the Amazon but raised billions to fix Notre Dame, a man-made structure. Greenland's ice sheet just lost 11 billion tons of ice in one day! There is a massive rise in temperature! However, we just gasp at the news and move on. Aarey forest is going to be cut down for a metro shed! Do we even realize the consequences of these actions? Here is an example to give you a perspective: cutting the Aarey forest will lead to a lack of groundwater, purity of air will go down significantly and the chances of flooding will increase. We are trapped in the culture of consumerism and will trade comfort over the environmental crises any day. This can be seen by the usage of plastic, wastage of water, allowing cruise ships or buying electronic that aren't CFC free. These are just some examples of how our regular activities cause massive environmental harm because these are the activities of 7.7 billion people! And that's just in a day! However, for all this, we show our sadness by posting stories on social media while booking a cruise and having a drink in a plastic bottle. Hypocrisy can easily be replaced by human behaviour in the dictionary. Climate change and global warming aren't something we read in books and know will happen at some point in time in the future. It is here and now! The sad part is that the majority of it is not even covered by the media. This is important news!

We need to change our actions and take responsibility NOW! The UN says we have 18 months to reverse the damage we have done. This is the moment you decide, whether to let the planet die or to accept our mistakes and fight for its survival. The choice is ours, I hope we choose wisely.

- Shrishti Gupta, SYBMS.

Public Speak

Gandhiji once said, 'Be the change you want to see in the world'. As the youth of the nation, I believe that it is my duty to preserve the environment for future generations. We have not inherited the Earth from our fathers albeit we are borrowing it from our children. If each one of us takes a pledge to not misuse the resources available and preserve what is left, there will be a future to look forward to.

- Ashwati Nair, FYBMS.

The environment is no more the safe habitat that it once was. We, the 'intelligent species', have destroyed it to such an extent that the environment which was once a canvas of bright colors, a source of positive energy and calming beauty now reeks of chemical exhausts, pollutants, death, and decay. It is now or never. Either we step up now and take a stand for our forests, or we lose them forever. #thistimeforaarey

- Yutika Baar, FYBA.

Today, where some parts of Maharashtra are praying for rains, other parts are dealing with floods. Disasters that occur due to human-induced climate change can destroy infrastructures, cause agrarian distress and potentially cripple the economy too. A strong public policy can help us to fight the crisis. Also, individual initiatives to reduce pollution will go a long way in addressing environmental issues.

- Ajinkya Gaikwad, Politics Association.

EARTH 2050: Do we even have a future to look forward to?

It seems like when you care for someone by giving them all the facilities that you think they deserve, well, they start taking you for granted and end up disrespecting the things received. The same can be observed in the case of humans where we end up scarring Earth, the healer, and the provider to such an extent that its existence is at stake! Our civilized cities have developed taste for luxurious living which has destroyed most of our natural resources. In the meanwhile where people are busy seeking an easy way of living, our future is fading away. The smoke of the burning forests and the flooding of cities are the of Earth's turmoil. While everyone is busy planning for the future, are they contributing in any way to secure or build the same?

On the one hand, people barely do anything for the environment and on the other, there is a different set of people whose haphazard usage of natural resources has led to calamities like floods, droughts, forest fires, etc. People are not aware of current situations but they surely cause outrage and show entitlement on social media. The most recent example is the Amazonian forest fires. If we look twenty to thirty years down the line, then it is hard to imagine that the land we walk on, the air we breathe and the trees that we adore will even find their way to the future. So, let us ask ourselves if we do not take action now, do we truly have a future to look forward to?

-Fareha Kazi, SYBA

THE POLITICAL CONNECT

National Register of Citizens (NRC)

Five years, four deferred deadlines and Rs.1,220 crores have finally led to the final conclusion in the form of around 19 lakh people being excluded from the National Register of Citizens. Communal tension in Assam has led to the deployment of extra paramilitary forces and the evocation of Section 144 in some sensitive areas. The NRC was last updated in 1951 but ever since, the Bangladesh Liberation War and the resulting refugee crisis has led to demographic changes in Assam. The Assam Accord of August 15, 1985 gave March 24, 1971 as the criteria for identifying foreigners. Those who entered Assam after March 24, 1971 were to be deported back but over the years, no government took a concrete step towards this issue. It was only after the Supreme Court orders, that the process was started in 2014.

Now that the list has been finally published, those who are excluded can approach the Foreign Tribunals. There are already 100 Foreign Tribunals and an additional 200 of them are going to be operational from September 1, 2019. Cases should be registered within 120 days i.e. till December 31, 2019 and they would be disposed within 6 months. If not satisfied with the decision of the Foreign Tribunals then the petitioner can move to the High Court and Supreme Court.

Today when the list has been declared, those excluded, are on the verge of being stripped of their citizenship. Suspicious about the next governmental move, they have become homeless or in a larger sense 'stateless'. Most of these people lead a meek life and are more or less dependent on the government for their daily livelihood. The people, categorized as foreigners, could be debarred of their existing voting rights which will, in a way make them a less affluent stakeholder in Assam politics.

So now the question arises whether these people would be deported back to Bangladesh or would they be held in detention camps. Further, if the foreigners are not deported back to Bangladesh, then would they be divided equitably in all the states? If not then it could possibly give birth to AASU agitation 2.0, which will definitely be more intense than the earlier one.

A State in Distress: Jammu and Kashmir

The nation bore witness to the historic decision of scrapping Article 370 and 35A of the Indian Constitution on August 05, 2019. There have been mixed reactions to the decision. While some rejoice, there are others who oppose it saying that the people of Kashmir should be the ones deciding the same. The former Chief Minister of Kashmir, Mehbooba Mufti, placed under house-arrest, expressed her views as she tweeted,

"The overwhelming mandate that PM Modi had given us hope that like a statesman he too would tread the path taken by Vajpayee Ji & reach out to people of J&K. What an utter betrayal of trust."

For those still unaware about Article 370 & 35 A: Article 370 granted an autonomous status to the states of Jammu and Kashmir. Before the scrapping of Article 370, the provisions of the Indian constitution did not apply to Jammu and Kashmir. Thus, Kashmir had its own flag, its constitution and its own rules too. The people of Kashmir hold dual passports - one Indian and the other Kashmiri. However, it was meant to be a temporary provision.

On the other hand, Article 35A empowered the J&K Legislature to define the state's permanent residents, their privileges and special rights. Due to the scrapping of these Articles, the Kashmiris have now become a part of India and thereby have to follow the Indian constitution. Henceforth, Jammu and Kashmir will be recognized as a union territory with a legislature, and Ladakh without a legislature. This complete turn of events has drastically affected the people residing in the region. There was a complete shutdown in the region while the decision was passed followed by a social-media and network isolation in the States. There was a curfew in the State and one could see military troops patrolling the area. This caused unrest in the region where the people of the State were unaware of their national status and changed citizenship. This led to Kashmiris raising their voice against the lack of opportunity to put forth views about the same. The transition is not going to be an easy one as a lot needs to be looked into. Meanwhile the State is set to be reorganized on October 31, 2019.

Whether it will be a day to celebrate or not, only time will tell. What remains pertinent is: Kashmiri voices should be heard. After all, it is their home.

- Jaishree J Lalla, SYBA.

Amazon Prime of Movie Time?

Everyone loves going to the movies with their friends and eating an unimaginable amount of popcorn until they realize that it does cost a pretty penny. In the age of on-demand streaming services, the tradition of watching movies in the theatres is slowly dying out. Not only is the price tag of movie tickets increasing but also of the snacks and drinks. Almost always, the food items end up costing more than the ticket themselves. On the contrary, one can stream content of their choice at any place and at any given time as long as they have a viable internet connection. Also, streaming does not cost an arm and a leg, unlike movie theatres. Furthermore, the variety of options offered by streaming services are abundant when compared to cinemas. You can watch a movie from any decade at your convenience, and also avoid the hassle of booking tickets in advance. Some people feel embarrassed to go to the movies alone, which is not the case for streaming services.

Nevertheless, die-hard cinephiles would never budge from their habits. Some cinematic masterpieces cannot be viewed on a small screen without a loss of its aura. There is a certain excitement to watching a movie before everyone else (giving you massive bragging rights!) which streaming services could never capture. Moreover, movie theatres have a massive speaker systems leading to a complete focus on the movie sans distraction. Streaming also gives rise to piracy and leaking of movies which is unfair to the creators and the artists who worked tirelessly for the movie/series to come into existence. Yet, streaming services like Netflix, Amazon Prime, and HotStar do not seem to be slowing down anytime soon. As a matter of fact, new streaming services like Disney Plus and Apple TV Plus are going to be launched before long. Our frenzy of binge-watching and hunger for convenience might lead to the extinction of cinemas as we know it. It might one day just be a concept that our grandchildren would have heard of but never experienced.

5 Must Watch Off-Beat Movies

On that note, presenting a curated list of 5 must-watch off-beat movies that will make you fall in love with cinema and its concept all over again.

1. Lucia (2009) - Kannada

Lucia, covers the story of a theatre artist who takes pills for his insomnia and in this state starts having lucid dreams of about becoming a movie star. This movie presents an interesting take on cinema and also has made it to the Oscars. Binge-worthy!

2. Hunt for the Wilderpeople (2016) - English

The story is about a boy and his grumpy stepfather who take refuge in the woods and run in order to escape the false accusations made on them. A must watch for cinema lovers as the movie shows unique takes on two different people coming together to face adversity.

3. Angamaly Diaries (2017) - Malayalam

Have you ever wondered how small incidents have an impact on our lives? Discover the nuances of life with a cast full of new faces in Angamaly Diaries.

4. Zoo (2018) - Hindi

Shot on an iPhone 6, the movie follows the story of a drug dealer, his brother and 2 rappers who deal with their own addictions. The plot focuses on teenage drug abuse and drug dependency of substance abusers.

5. Super Deluxe (2019) - Tamil

One of the cinematic masterpieces when it comes to seamless narration, the story has 4 different plots that cross paths in interesting ways. The characters and their stories make you question your life at various moments.

Modern Dating: the Electronic Highway to Love

'Love can be found in the most unexpected places,' said Barbra Streisand. Well, how about Tinder, Hinge, Bumble – a modern-day solution to our modern-day dating problems. The ultimate aide to help in dealing with our loneliness and the source of validation for many. Dating apps these days give you the option to choose a potential match as per your taste and preferences, and your commonalities. Initially, everyone seems thrilled with the idea of dating someone just like themselves, sharing the same hobbies and the same interests. But unfortunately, if things don't work out, people fall back to the habit of swiping left and right. In other words, people find it difficult to date themselves.

These dating platforms create a high level of interaction thereby making sure that you are hooked, which, at times, can be distracting. People do not focus anymore, neither on themselves nor in the relationship they are getting into, which makes it easier to move on. The convenience with which one finds people with similar interests makes them believe that if not this one then another would come. This lack of commitment in making things work is the main reason why these apps are a success. In conclusion, our dependence on such apps to form meaningful relationships needs moderation if not complete withdrawal, and better means of getting to know new people.

Turn The Tables with Priya Kumar

An interview with motivational speaker, business coach and the bestselling author of books like 'The Wise Man Said', and 'I'll be with you' which was recently made into a web-series 'The Final Call'.

Q. What was the thought process behind your latest book- 'Turn the Tables' and what would be the key takeaway from the book?

"When I started my career as a motivational speaker there was no concept of start-ups. The success stories that we came across were mainly male-dominated about how their rebellious streak helped them overcome struggles. For a young woman trying to make it as a motivational speaker back in the day when that industry was practically non-existent was quite the task. The book charts my journey as a teacher, a motivational speaker, and an author. In short, the book is all about having things your way where you get to choose and call the shots. If I can do it then anyone can!"

Q. How long does it take to make characters like Sammy from 'The Wise Man Said'? What is your process of writing a book?

"It takes me about five to eight days to write a book. I start with a general concept and that gives me the idea about what I am going to write. The process takes about ten days where I do not interact with anybody, and by the fourth day of being on this social recluse, I am ready to type out my thoughts. Once I start writing on day 5, it just takes me another five days to finish the book. This is how all my stories are written. And as to creating characters, well, I just get these ideas that really fascinate me. Every character that you see in my book are common people who has chosen their way of life. That gives them their own unique abilities, a way of thinking and skills too."

Q. How do you edit things out of the book?

"Well, my first draft is the one where I write everything I feel, and then I just leave it be. Sometimes for a few days, weeks or even a month. After this I review it, and see if the idea makes sense. This is where the editing starts. The best time to edit the book is after a period of detachment."

Q. Your thoughts on writer's block.

"I've written a book where I talk about writer's block. Honestly, I've never had it. But whenever I feel that I'm stuck, I just lie down or I sleep it off. So it's just the fatigue gotten in, not that you can't think, or maybe there are too many things in your head. It is better to rest it off."

Q. Any plans of maybe trying your hand at screenwriting given the audiences response to 'The Final Call'?

"Already doing that! Along with the screenplay of my next web series I also did the first three drafts of the 'The Final Call'. Two years ago I did a course in screenplay writing and directing from the New York Film Academy. I personally believe that the author should write the screenplay because as an author you have created the characters, lived with them and so have better knowledge of the characters than the person who takes up the book for adaptation. The small details are what inspire me to write and direct my next web series."

Q. How does it feel to finally see your characters come to life on screen?

"It's a great feeling to see your characters come to life and the best part as an author is when you have your books signed out for the visual medium, have it in the contract that you wish to be involved in the selection of characters and get to be the head of script, which means you know what kind of changes will be made to your script, in your story and who will be the cast. It feels great to have your story present in visual medium."

Q. On a daily basis what inspires you the most?

"I wake up with the sense of responsibility to deliver what I have been trusted with and this definitely gets me going. Apart from that, it could be anything: a good read, music, a post or some video or even meeting someone after a long time and seeing how far they have come. Inspiration is easily available, and I surround myself with positivity to be in good spirits in order to do more."

Q. What would be one life lesson that is not part of your books, which changed you as a person that you'd like to share with our readers?

"Never compromise. Don't cut your dreams short. Never think that if you compromise now, if you shut up now, or if you just put your head down today then in future opportunities will open up. That is never going to happen. You need to stand up now, stand tall now, fight for your dreams now and that is how the future is made. Anyone who tries to give you this big speech on sacrifice, compromise and living small, don't listen to that person. You live as you want to live as it is your life."

-Garima Bhatt, TYBMS & Tanaya Diwanji, SYBMM.

ENTREPRENEURSHIP 101: All About SEED Funding and More

Being an entrepreneur is not merely a job instead it is a mind-set. Right from Steve Jobs to Walt Disney, it takes something more than just an idea to make things happen. To celebrate the spirit of entrepreneurship, and capture the essence of remarkable entrepreneurs, Nirmitee Kendra (under RUSA) held “Innovatia: Start-ups, funding and more” in Phase 1 and 2 on March 09, 2019 and July 19, 2019 respectively. The programme shed light upon the nuances of developing one's own business ideas and converting them into successful business ventures. Sharing his thoughts on entrepreneurship, Mr. Uday Wankawala (CEO of Atal Incubation Centre) said that - a person should identify his/her own strengths and weaknesses not only to sell their business idea/s but also to sell themselves from the inception itself. Being an entrepreneur means believing in yourself even when others doubt you. A 5-year plan is necessary for sustainability, and innovation should be at core for progress. Dreams do not work unless we do, and so putting in 18 to 20 hours of effort on a daily basis is the level of dedication you need. Ms. Sheetal Shetty from ‘Connecting Dreams’ (an NGO) believes that students are the future of entrepreneurship. She urged the young children to pour their heart and soul into being the best version of themselves. The winners of ‘Innovatia’, a start-up competition held by Nirmitee Kendra, presented their product prototypes in front of the jury and gained relevant suggestions and guidance from the same. Mr. Wankawala invited interested students and promised them assistance regarding the same at Atal Incubation

Steps to get yourself a sponsorship/mentor:

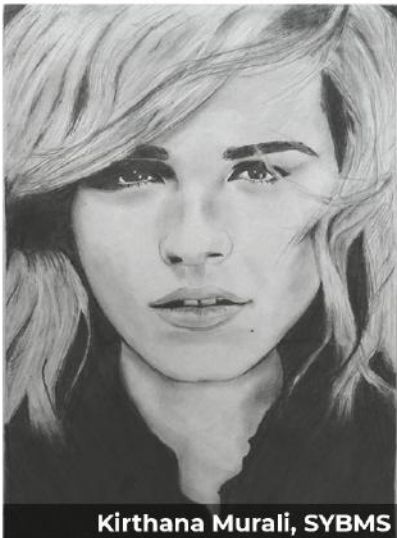

- Develop your idea and the various ways in which it can be turned into a proper business model.
- Prepare a formal proposal about your business.
- Pitch the proposal to the Nirmitee Kendra investors.
- Selected proposals are then sent to the incubators where further training and other facilities are provided for nurturing your business idea.

For more details about the same you can contact: nirmiteekendrasies@gmail.com
